

WHAT DO YOU SEE?

Not everyone sees things the same way. Does looking at something differently mean one person is right and one is wrong? Should you try to see things both ways?

Steps:

Show a bunch of those pictures that have multiple things in it- duck or rabbit? Old lady or young? White and gold or blue and black?

Talk about how people see things differently- and some people will never see it your way. That doesn't mean you're right and they're wrong or that they're right and you're wrong. You can both be right. You can both be wrong.

The best you can do is listen to people and try to see things from their side. What's another example you can think of in life where this happens? Have you ever gotten in an argument where both people were right or both people were wrong? Can you be right and wrong at the same time? Can you be right but handle it in the wrong way? Can you be wrong but handle it in the right way?

What if someone is right, but they're YELLING at the person who is wrong? What if someone is wrong, but they listen to the person who is right, try to understand, and admit they were wrong? Is it okay to be wrong? Is anyone on the planet right all the time?

What is more important- being right or being kind? Which way will you have more friends? Which way will make you happier in the long run? Which way will make those around you happier?
